Foreword

The writing of a yearbook is not an easy task, and the compilation of a good yearbook is even more difficult. The quest for originality is inevitable, but new ideas are at a premium. With these two goals in mind, a good and an original yearbook, we have undertaken what we consider a novel approach in the presentation of the 1959 MESASA.

We are fully aware of the fact that a vast combination of people—their emotions, experiences, and everyday affairs—make up a year at Ottawa Hills. For some the year has dragged, while for others it has gone in the twinkling of an eye, depending on what contribution each made to the combination.

This year, 1959, has been much like the others and in its own way much different. The school is the same—the combination is different—because the combination is you. We've tried to capture 1959 among these pages that it might always lie within your grasp.

The story we have written of you at Ottawa Hills is not masked, played up or down in any way, for we have related it just as it was. It is from this idea that we have developed the theme of our yearbook.

With your indulgence we should like to tell your story. Your playback of '59 at Ottawa Hills has begun . . .

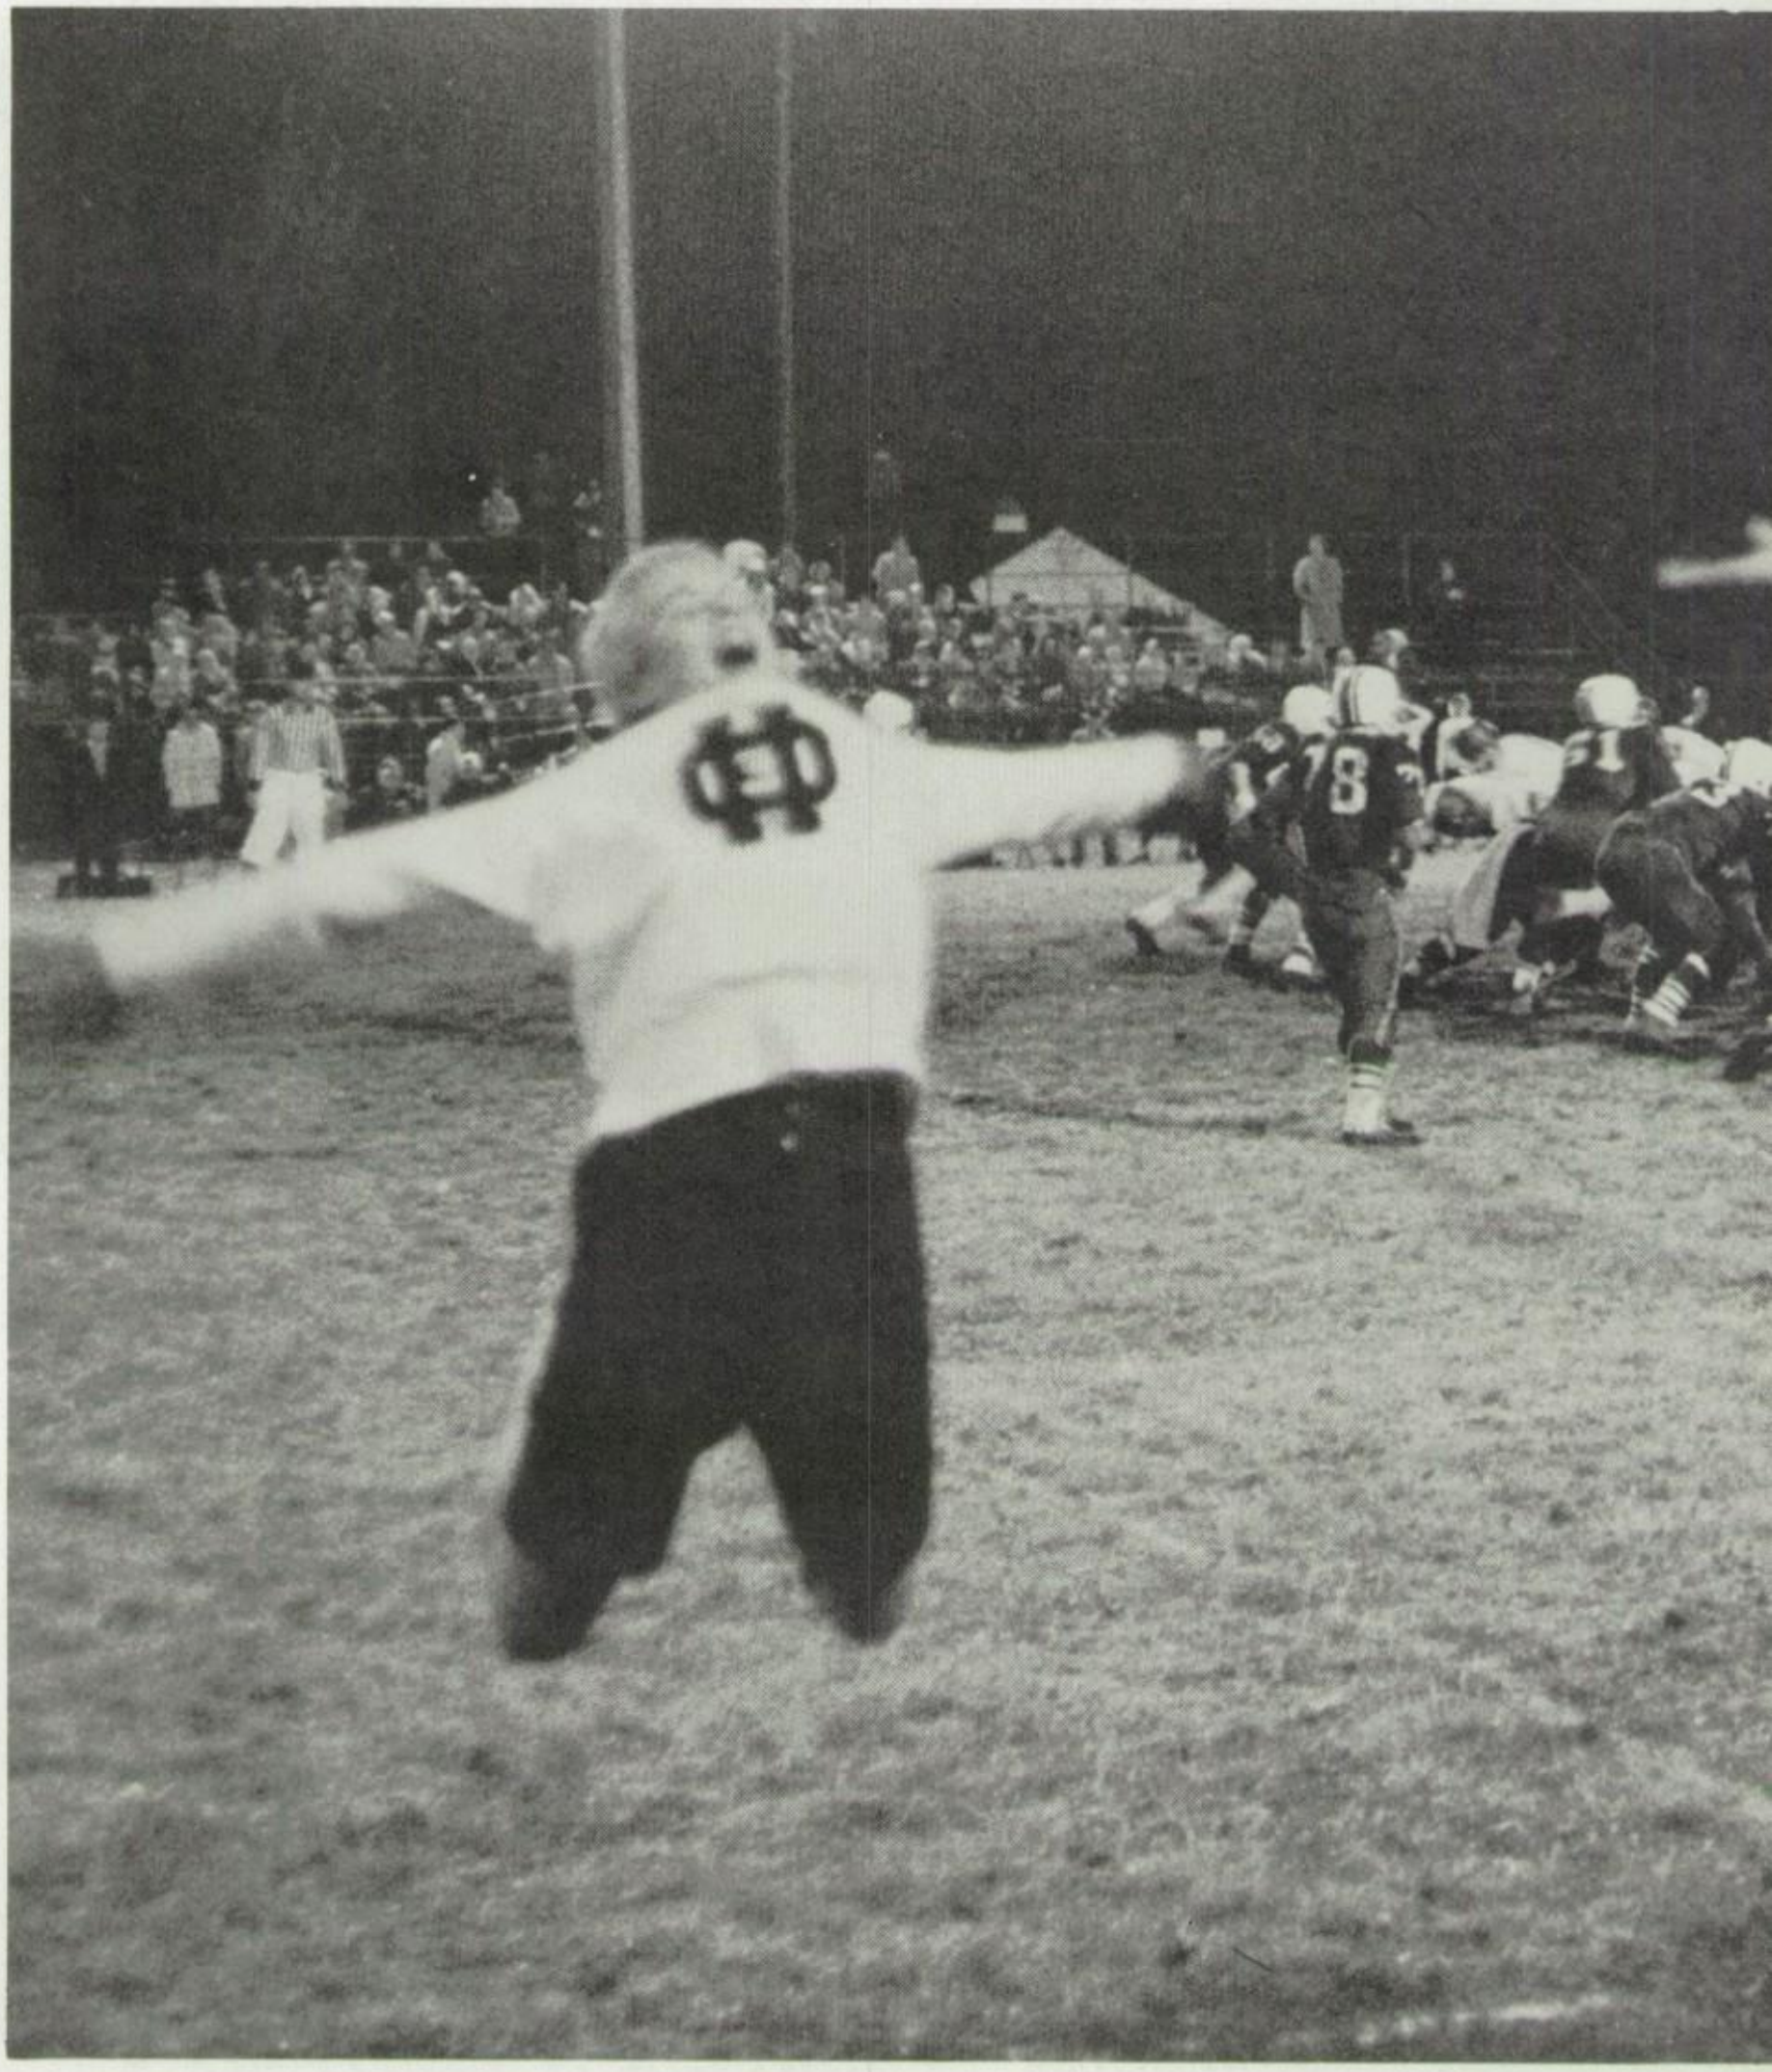
To our dear
and devoted friend,
MR. DOCIS
the class of 1959 dedicates this book.

Fall . . .



Reluctantly turning from the carefree, laughing days that were summer, we looked forward hopefully to the inevitable . . .

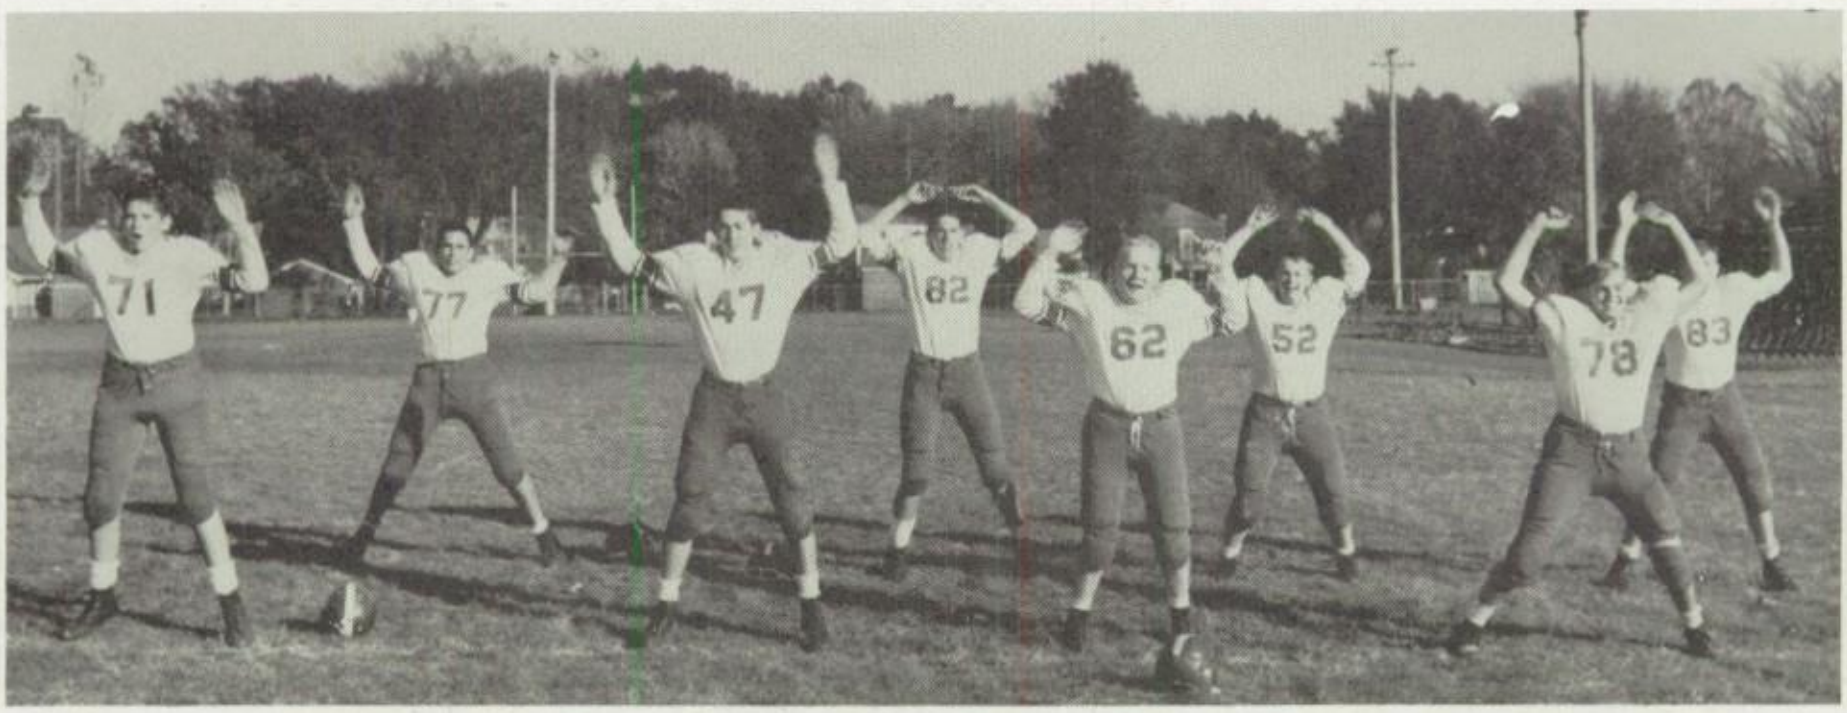
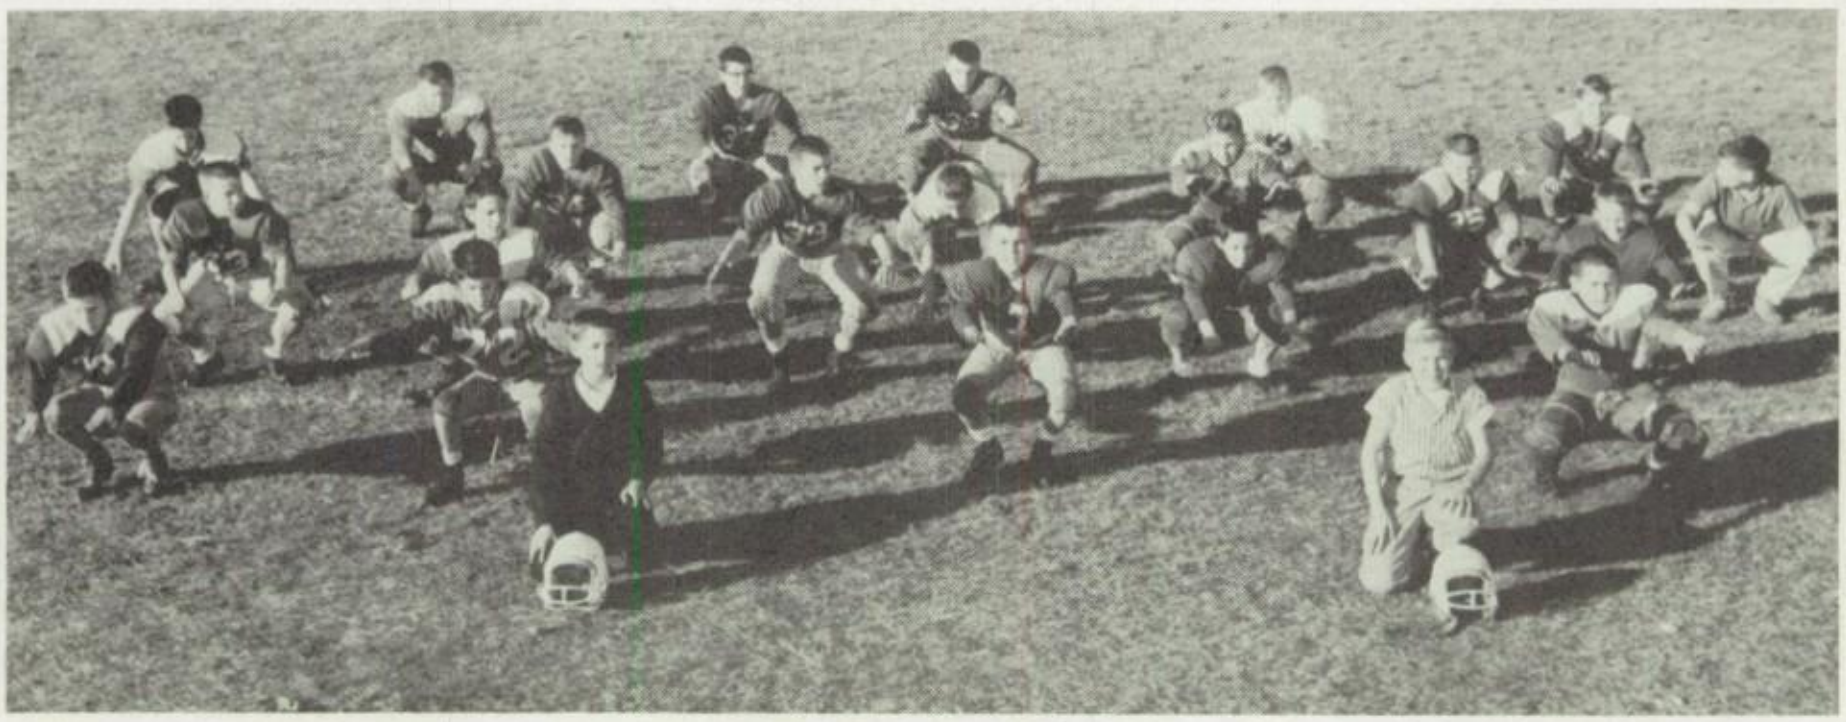
For some the change was not sudden for they had been eagerly anticipating the approaching fall season. The football players ranked among the first in this group.





The hot sun hadn't shone quite so kindly upon their backs—a tan wasn't THEIR objective! The most eager were the . . .

new students. It wasn't a matter of slipping back easily into a friendly old routine for them; although we hope that with the aid of helpful student council members their approaching experiences would be not only painless but as much fun as we could make them. The friendly greetings on New Students Day were supplemented by an all over welcome and general delight in seeing new faces

Perhaps the faculty wasn't anticipating the fast approaching season QUITE so eagerly . . . There were pleasing new faces here too, and because we hadn't seen them for three months the familiar ones were especially pleasing. There were many pre-school chores to be done in making ready the school itself. Our office staff and custodians were indispensable along these lines. Those empty rooms would soon be filled with a multitude of noisy, happy, unrestrained students. Ranking after the seniors in being the noisiest, happiest, and most unrestrained were the . . .

seventh graders. As new-comers to the high school these students have the greatest number of opportunities ahead of them—their memories are yet to be formed.

On nearly every Friday evening before the game large groups of girls could be seen filing into various houses around the Hills bringing with them anything from pickles to chocolate cake. Such a delicious array of goodies could scarcely be COMPLETELY devoured before it was time to hurry off to the game to watch . . .

the players come through the gate led by . . .

the senior lettermen.

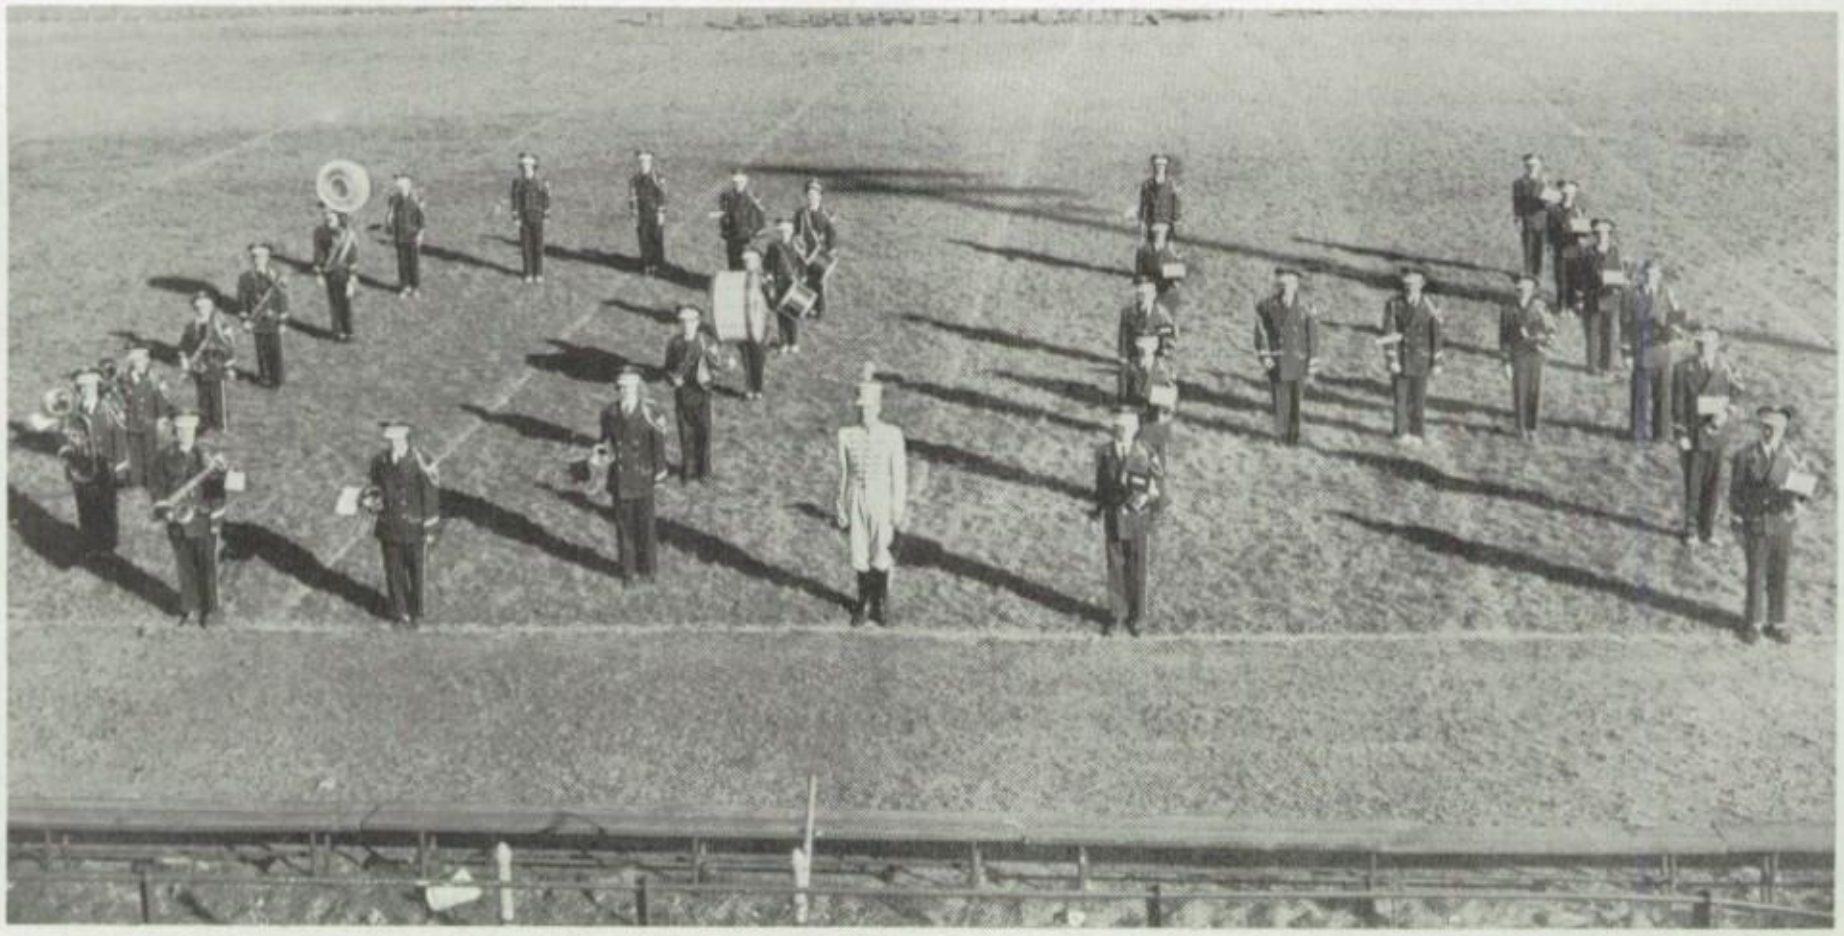
The team rose for the kickoff and the game began. After many action-packed moments it was time for . . .



the halftime ceremonies. Included in this program was the participation of our newly formed band. Directed by Mr. Snyder and led by Dick Lang, they presented their precision formations most skillfully. While the band was entertaining the spectators,

Mr. Neidermier and Mr. Shatusky were hard at work in the locker room explaining the strategy to be used in the second half . . .

The highlight of the football season was homecoming week end.

Carol Kahle made one of the loveliest queens ever.

In fact EACH of the queen candidates—Carol Bower, Karen Parachek, Sally Gushman, and Carol Crow —would have made an extremely attractive queen.

The game ceremonies were especially nice, (Oh, those cars!), and the dance itself was a huge success because of the efforts put forth by the Student Council.

Y-Teens were busy during the fall season too. Their green and white shakers served as a wonderful stimulant at many a game. Their Halloween party was not only entertaining, (WHOOOO could forget that play?), but the refreshments were delicious.

The football players weren't alone in their after-school practices—at least during the hockey season. School spirit was certainly at its peak during fall. It seemed as if everyone contributed to it in some way. The Art Club was no exception; their green and white pillows giving it an extra push . . . Fall not only included sports activities, projects and an abundance of school spirit . . .

but was the season which produced a vast amount of hidden talents discovered and uncovered for our enjoyment and entertainment, but especially for our amusement. "The Red House Mystery" was a complete success owing to Miss Moe's ingenuity, a superb cast, and a receptive and appreciative audience.

Talent Night revealed a group of hardy, courageous youths who, with anything but stage fright, demonstrated their matchless abilities in nearly all fields of the entertainment world . . . and speaking of laughs . . .

here you are . . .

Our enthusiasm which had reached its peak spilled over into . . .

Winter . . .

. . . perhaps the busiest time of the year, when everything seemed to happen at once —all the time!

An important activity that highlighted the winter season and afforded many exciting moments was basketball. The youngest participators, guided by Mr. Fulghum, practiced diligently for the day when they would lead the varsity. This ultimate goal was not so distant for the freshmen since they were one step closer and had completed another successful year. Nearest their goal was the . . .

reserve team who were not only successful in their own season, but also contributed on occasion to varsity victories. Those who passed through these preliminary stages and had demonstrated their competence evolved as players for the varsity.

The able coaching of Mr. Stewart, combined with the persistent effort on the part of these players, although green at the start, brought about a rewarding season.

As a result, a great deal of potential was developed which can be evidenced by the team's play in the tournament where achievement was not measured in points, but rather in the team's progress as a whole.

The many long hours spent in practicing for the Christmas Concert were NEVER quite numerous or long enough. There was ALWAYS that awful fear deep down inside each of us that we'd either completely forget the words, or the notes, (that is when we LEARNED them), stand up when everyone else sat down, or fall backwards off the top of the bleachers. The mixed ensemble and the mixed chorus formed the backbone, added to by the girls' and boys' choruses. Cathy and Margot with the much appreciated help of Mr. Woodward efficiently handled all the pre-concert preparations, while Mr. Snyder and Wendy (with a little help from us) handled the music end . . .

the result was everything hoped for . . .

The senior high didn't supply ALL the school's musical talent as is easily seen when listening to the eighth grade boys' ensemble, the eighth grade girls' chorus, or the seventh grade chorus. Mrs. Rudolf can well be proud of them.

It's hard to say just WHEN we were first filled with that Christmas "spirit," but it was well before the 25th and lasted long afterward . . .

But vacation didn't last . . .

forever. Exhausted as they were, some managed to unleash some reserve energy. The G.A.A. volleyball teams not only played to win but with the hope that those "unpleasant remnants" of Christmas vacation would be turned back into muscle(?).

The basketball season followed and none too soon for the many girls who enjoy this sport. And with enjoyment came skill.

Classified somewhere between work and play . . .

was the Honor's Reading Program, engineered and initiated by Mrs. Harrah. Group discussions brought out all sorts of interesting opinions of the books we'd read. And speaking of books—some of us had some pretty "interesting" opinions of them around exam time. Aghh! But with exams came the realization that we'd reached the half-way mark. It seemed unbelievable to some but . . .

to others it was long overdue. Perhaps the eighth graders were in the latter group for they had nine more semesters to go. The class of '63 is not only studious(?) but contributes beneficially to . . .

the Junior High Student Council. Advised by Mrs. Braun and led this year by Chris Young, this organization played an important part in maintaining Ottawa Hills' standards and providing excellent opportunities for its participants to gain experience that will be invaluable when they're members of the Senior High Student Council. Among the problems of the elder statesmen was the one concerning the promotion of the . . .

Area Student Council Dance in February. The student body chose Margot McIver to represent us at the dance—and a most charming candidate she made! Sally O'Shaughnessy, Gail Blanke, and Carol Bower were also nominees. Certainly the excitement and gala decorations at the Naval Armory made it a memorable night.

February was an important month for the . . .

World Affairs club too, for they were delighted to have Mr. Meminger from the State Department speak to the club of his unusual experiences in the foreign service. In addition to giving an informative and entertaining talk, Mr. Meminger welcomed the endless questions. Sally O'Shaughnessy, president, and of course Mr. Barber, advisor, felt especially honored to have him.

One of the hardest working organizations, not just during the winter but all year long, was the Arrowhead Staff. Their paper was especially fine this year, always containing the very latest, most up to date facts concerning everything from sports news to who's going steady with whom. Glancing into the Arrowhead room almost any day of the week, (and especially Fridays), one could see Phil Adams, his staff, and Mrs. Burkhart working industriously. They handled the job well to say the least.

Actually, if one walked into nearly ANY classroom, he could be fairly certain of finding something of the unusual. Among the special extra-curricular activities was the Jets Club. Its members explored the fields of science and engineering, and worked on many fascinating projects.

A new boys' club, organized this year for lettermen of all sports, was the Varsity Club. Led by president, Tad Moore, the purpose of the club was to promote good sportsmanship and school spirit. Who could forget the cheering section of the "green jacket gang?" (Go, Bears, Go!)

Unmistakably . . .

winter seemed the longest season of the year, but perhaps it held the most memories.

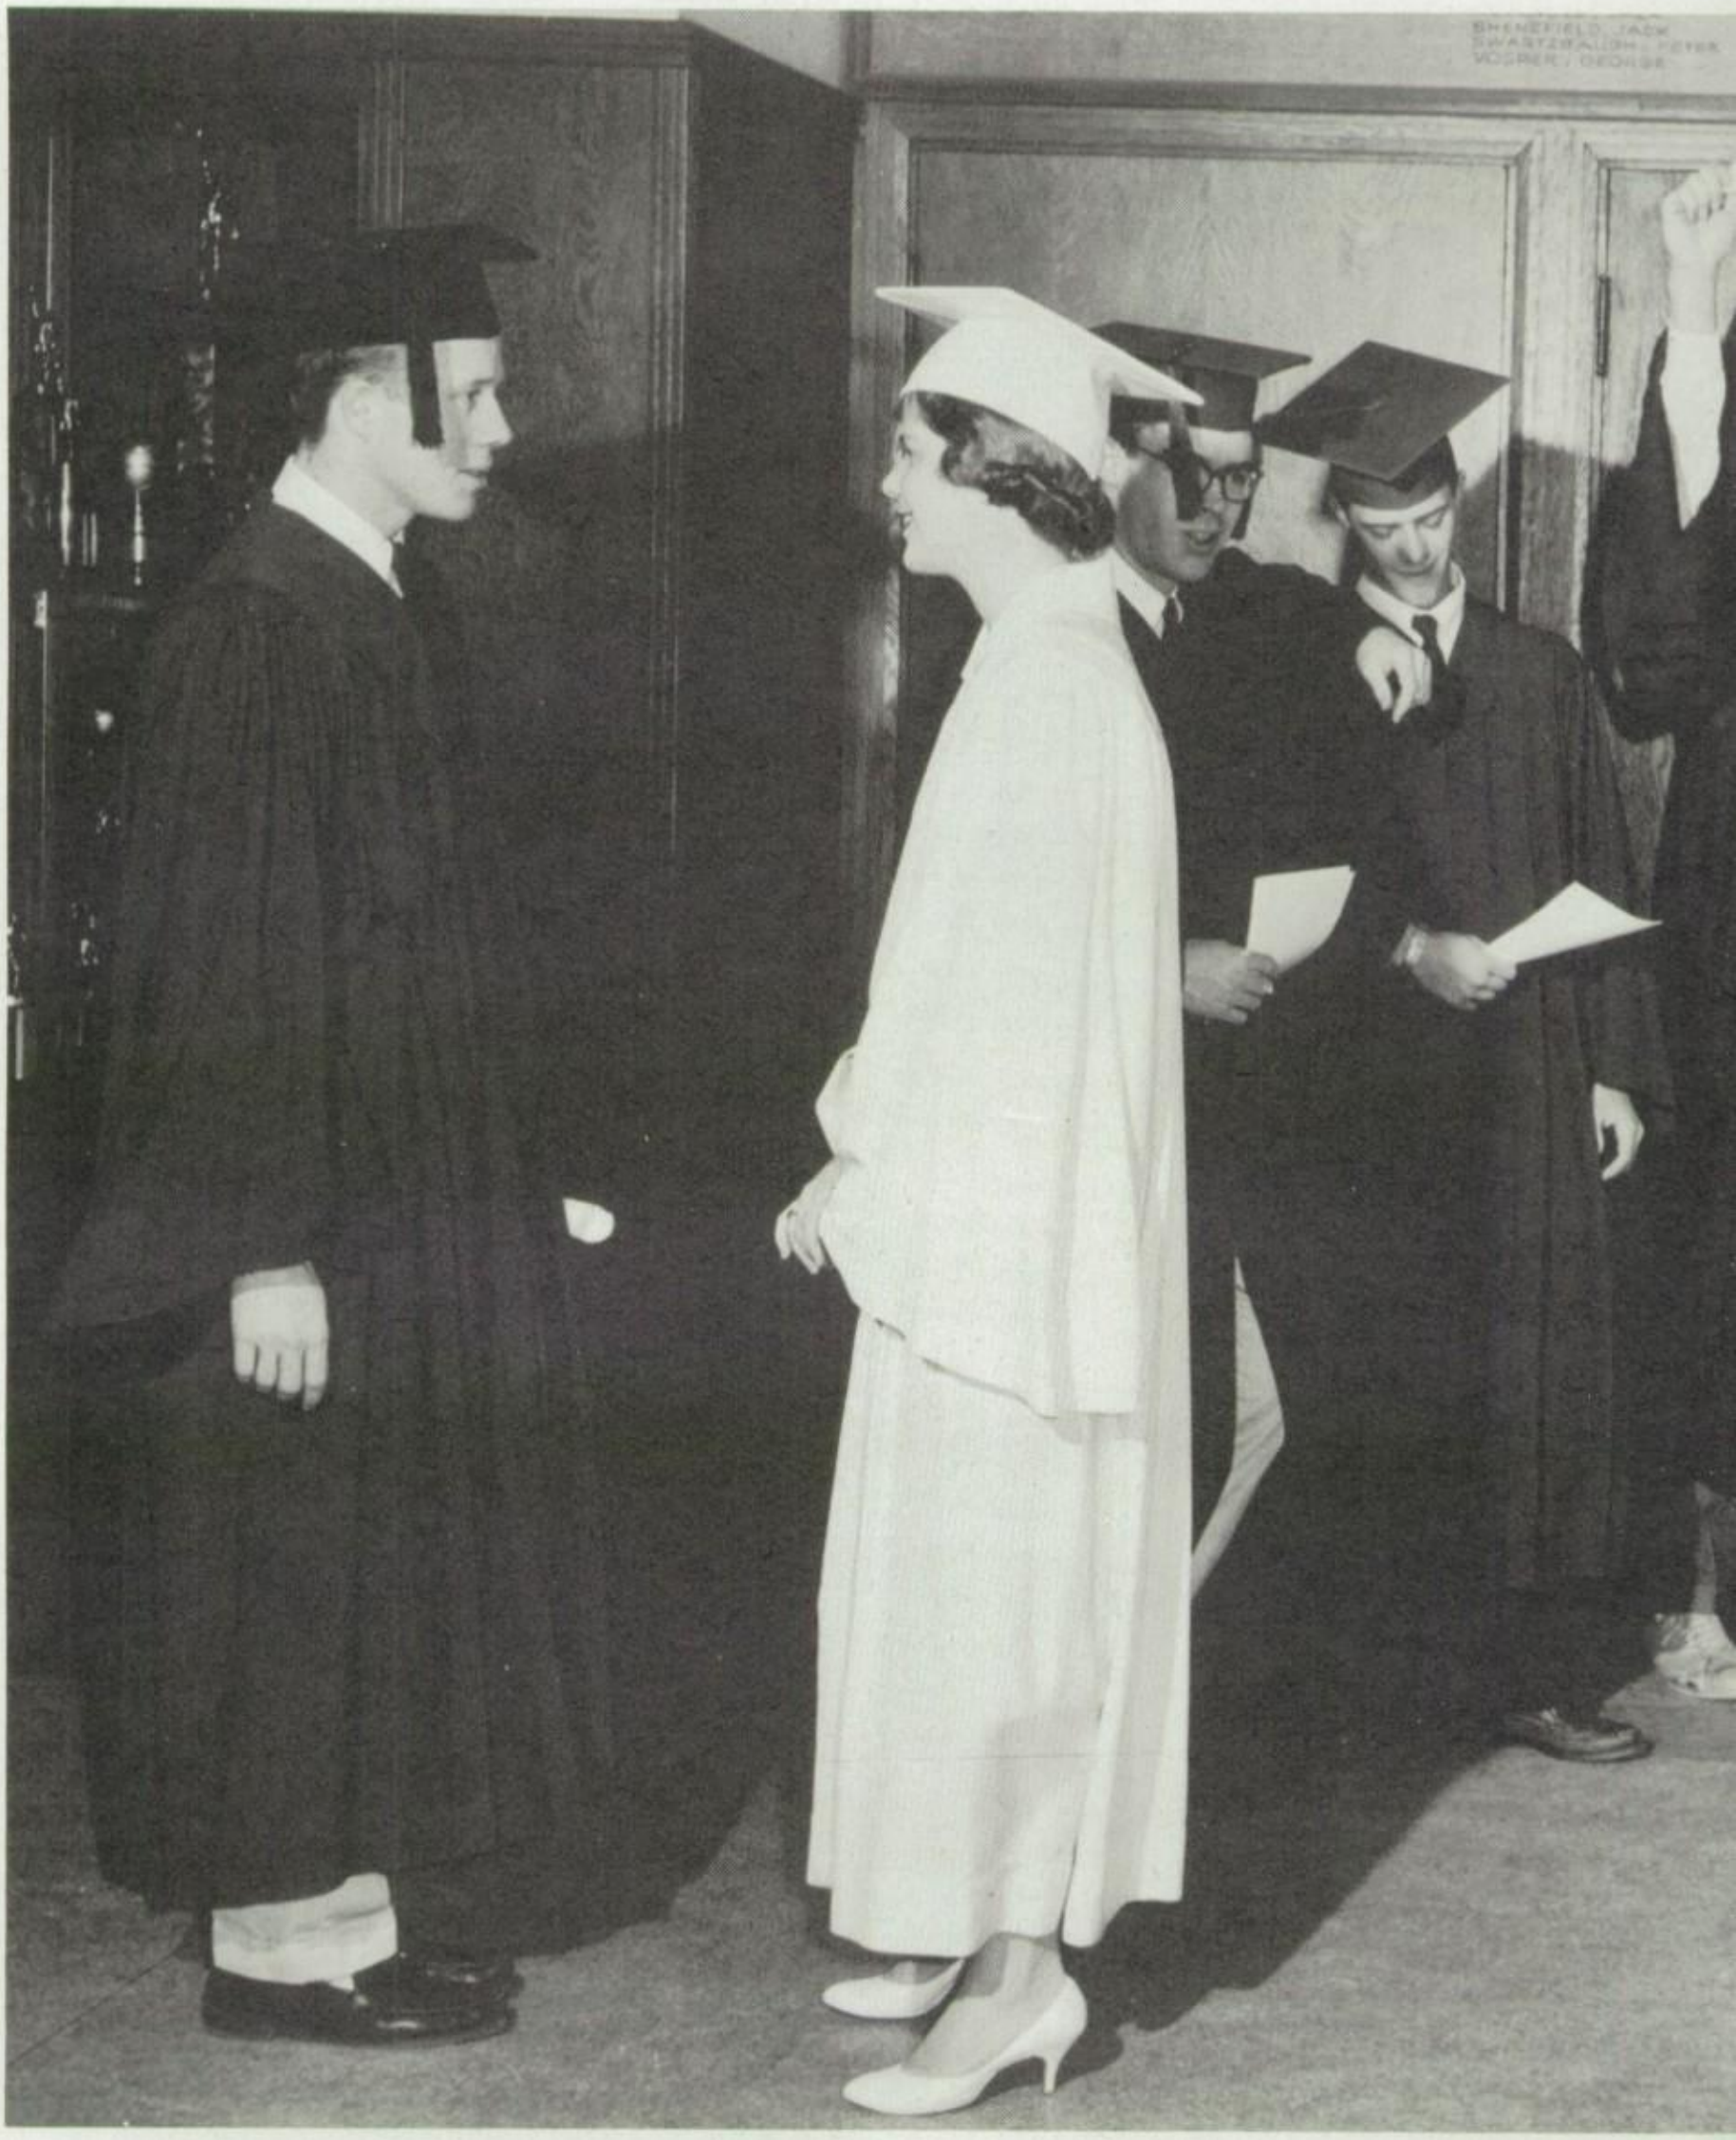
In spite of our doubts . . .

Spring . . .



Spring came — the last mile! And with it came a bright new outlook . . .

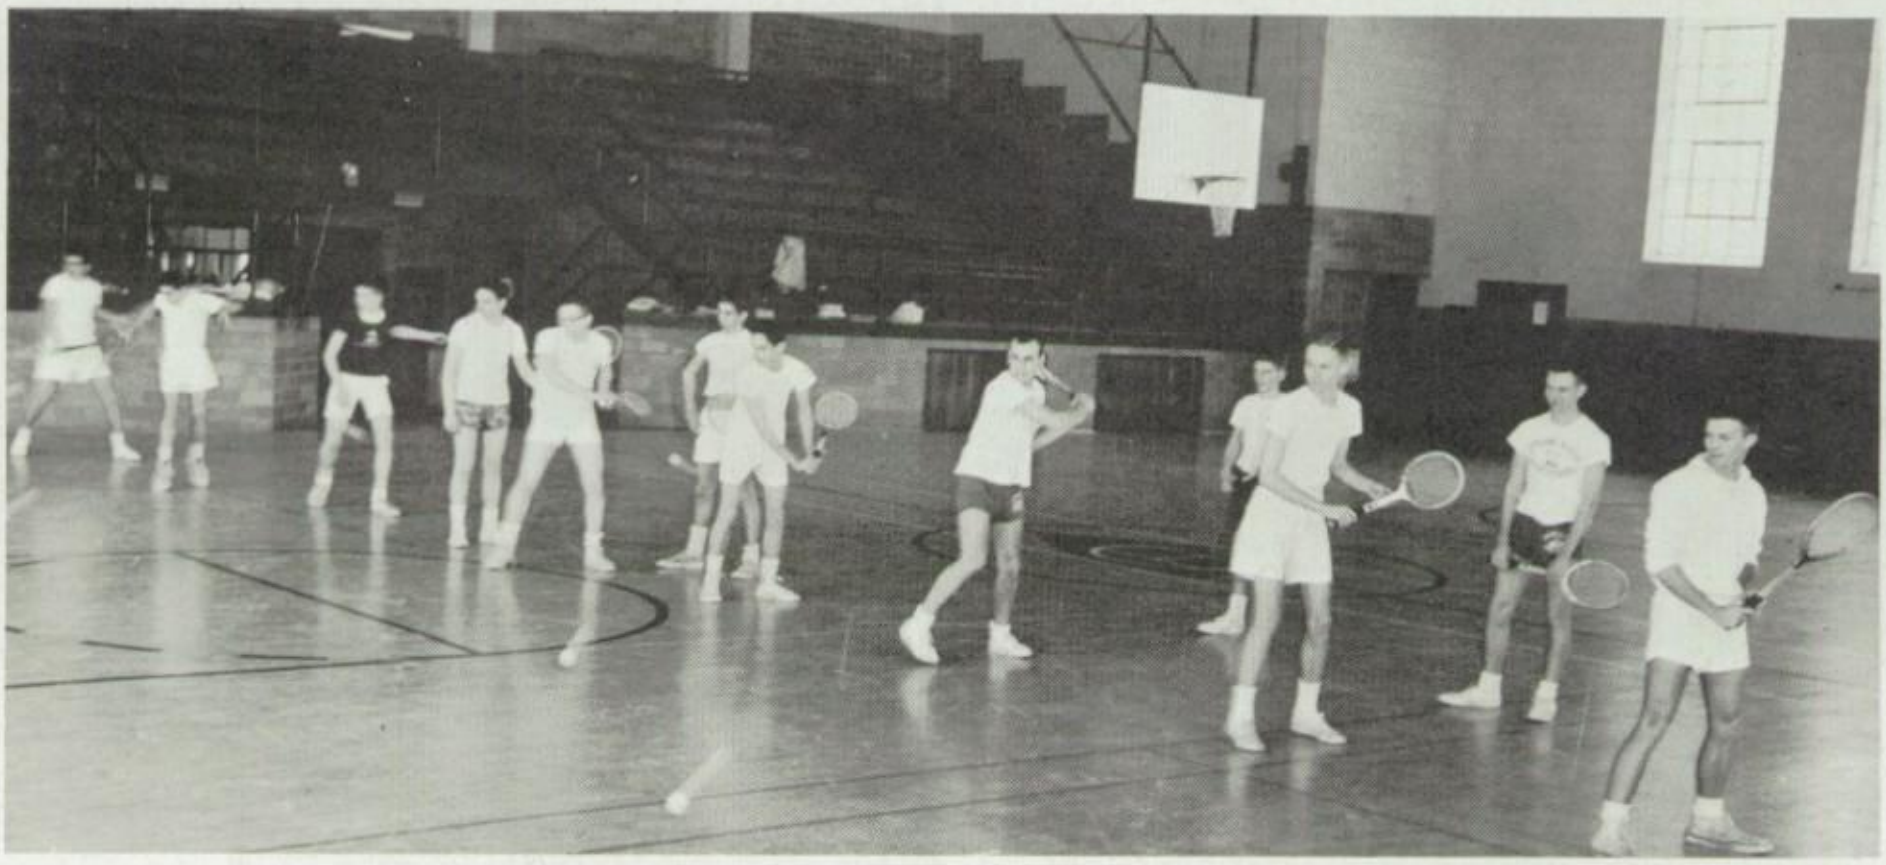
The Sequoian Staff, another relatively new, but very popular addition to the school, made their contribution to the new season with a spring edition of their magazine. The staff, with Cathy Klaus as chairman and Mrs. Steele as advisor, worked hard in compiling the magazine. But it was far from an arduous task due to the enjoyment derived from reading the sometimes serious, often satirical, but mostly humorous stories, essays, and poems written by us.



Spring renewed the desire to be outside as often as possible. Golfers, tennis players, and trackmen were among the first to satisfy this desire at the same time exhibiting their skills by representing Ottawa Hills in each of these sports.

At one time or another on Saturday night nearly everyone showed up at rec. center. Whether it be roller skating, square dancing, card playing or, (the most popular), shooting baskets, there was always something to do. Mr. Shatusky and Mr. Neidermier not only controlled the fun, but augmented it. Social activities dominated the spring season. Serving as an example was the Area Y-Teen Dance, "Diamonds on Velvet." Y-Teens were proud to have president Sterling Cole represent them.

Within the same week . . .

were Speech Night, giving an opportunity for Miss Moe's prize students to show their stuff, and the teachers' conference. Certain teachers had to leave early to make sure . . .

the Mesasa staffs would meet their deadlines. (Odd's copy and pictures! Tight ball!) Due to the efforts of Gail, Crowe, and Mr. Sattler and staff, the deadlines WERE met. The editorial staff spent money almost faster than the business staff could make it. Dick, Paul, and Mr. Fontaine had their doubts, but because of the staff's relentless search for ads the funds were obtained.

for itself.

The yearbook went to press with a deep sigh of relief. But the feeling of relief was overshadowed by the warm feeling of satisfaction that comes with the accomplishment of a task —completed.

As this, your playback of 1959, comes to an end and the doors swing shut on another year at Ottawa Hills, it is our only wish that for you these "Remembered joys shall never pass;

they were,
they are,
they yet shall be."

To Green and White our loyalty we give,
Those colors fair that we have learned to love.
They mean to us these happy youthful days,
When we are starting on our divers ways.
And through the years that we are yet to live,
While still the sun is shining up above,
Fond memories will make us see again
The Green and White of our dear Ottawa Hills,
Where now we stand, a grateful loyal student band.

Glass Has Made A Difference

Now is the time to reflect upon the "good ole' days" in school—the many friends, your favorite teachers, sports and dances and parties. But when looking at today's school architecture, we think you'll agree that glass has made a difference! No longer must walls be solid and opaque. Today, more attention is being paid to daylight and view.

When reflecting upon the advantages of this glass age, we think you'll agree that the "good new days" are better.
